ASTERISK - PROLOGUE

This story is based on a story I drew a long time ago (a story of two nameless characters who released people's feelings that were left inside paintings). As a matter of fact, for this character I used a character I had drawn some time ago after having thought of it.

As for their identities, I thought that using angels could be nice because of their wings and holiness...and so it was decided.

But the fact was that his didn't even get the chance to display his wings in the first story, that was supposed to be a one-shot.

Then I decided to make another angel prince-like, and I began with this story of childhood friends.

I really like stories where one childhood friend, who was unimportant when he was young, grows up to be bigger and stronger than the other.
